

If you can find a sales position
better than this we'll eat our hat.

MacCann & Byrne is a highly successful company that manufactures timber products, distributes hardware products to merchants and promotes sustainable building products. The company has grown by matching quality with service, and has a reputation as progressive in approach; both externally in its introduction of new products and internally through its support of its sales force. Due to ongoing success, the Company is now offering an excellent opportunity to join a well trained and professional sales team and play a key role in further growing the business in this very receptive market.

Sales Executive Dublin – Louth – Meath

Using your strong knowledge of the timber and hardware industry, you will maintain and increase MacCann & Byrne's well established business in this key region. Your role will primarily involve servicing builders merchants and the hardware market with existing products, and new products as introduced by the company. You should possess excellent communication and presentation skills and demonstrate the ability to develop new customer relationships in a competitive market. You will be part of a strong sales team and receive excellent sales and customer service support from head office.

This important position offers the ideal candidate an excellent salary, bonuses, incentives and generous company benefits.
